An Era of Good Feeling and Bilarity. After Which Mr. Patrebild Says Nothing In Settled About the Anti-Tammasy Ticket, Although Mr. Smith

Seems to Think that Nearly Everything Is There was much joy in the house of the Seventy yesterday. The leaders of the Cuckoos, whom they had almost despaired of catching in whom they had almost despaired or catching in their conference net, meekly filed into the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce in the afternoon and announced their desire to talk with Mr. Charles Stewart Smith and his co.e gues on the subject of an anti-Tammany municipal ticket. Charles S. Fairchild led the way, and he was followed by ex-Mayor William R. Grace, Aqueduct Commis-sioner Francis M. Scott, and Col. Robert Grier Monroe. These gentlemen were closeted with Mr. Smith's committee nearly three hours, and the peals of laughter which were heard proceeding from behind the closed doors indicated that the party was in high good humor. the party was in high good numor.

The Curkoos of Mr. Smith's Executive Committee had evidently expected the visit of Mr. Fairchild and his friends, for they were out in force. Among them were Simon Sterne, Wil-liam B. Hernblower, Everett P. Wheeler, Lawrence J. Callanan, and W. Harris Roome.

After the conference both Messrs, Fairchild and Grace declared that their talk had been productive of nothing but good feeling; that they were not empowered as a committee to represent the New York State Democracy, and that they had only come as the result of an invitation to talk over matters informally.

"We did not discuss candidates," said Mr. "We were only permitted to express our views regarding the attributes and characteristics which a man ought to Whether on the score had been been before of unities when he met the newspaper reporters after his committee adjourned. He declared that the situation was more encouraging than it had been before of uniting all anti-Tammany forces on one ticket. He said that Mr. Fairchild and his friends had promised to recommend to their district leaders and the County Convention, which is to be held to-night, the appointment of a conference committee, and so sure are the representatives of the Seventy that their work will be speedily accomplished that they at once proceeded to make arrangements for a full meeting of the Committee of Seventy and the holding of a nominating conference of all the committee of Seventy and the holding of a nominating conference of the Cuckoos, to be held after the convention of the latter to-night, and called a meeting of the full Committee of Seventy for to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. They hope to have the nominating conference to-morrow evening at some place to be announced later. They have fixed on Thursday night, and the Seventy want to have the ticket ready to submit to it.

The Conference Committee of the Milholland

tion will be reconvenient to will be reconvenient to will be reconvenient to the seventy want to make the submit to it.

The Conference Committee of the Milholiand organization did not put in an appearance yesterday, and it is considered doubtful if they will be received by open arms by the Seventy, who do not wish to alienate the support of the regular Republicans by conferring with men who also pretend to represent that party.

Mr. Myere Ras the Call at Present Among

The men most talked of thus far as possible Tammany candidates for Mayor have been Park oner Nathan Straus, Congressman Amos J. Cummings, and ex-Comptroller Theodore W. Myers. Commissioner Straus, it is un-derstood, has refused to permit the use of his name, and Congressman Cummings much pre-fers to be returned to Congress from his own disto be the most considered to-day, but it is by no means certain that there may not be a round dozen of other possible candidates under discus-ussion to-morrow. Mr. Myers has been suggested as the most available candidate in case the opposition or-ganizations fuse on a Republican for Mayor. It not impossible, though, that as a younger man may be named in case the opposition should attempt to make the fight with a young man at the head of the ticket.

There has been some wild talk of stampeding the Convention for Mayor Gilroy and forcing his renomination. This reached the Mayor yesterday, and he stated most emphatically that no possible circumstances can arise which would lead to his taking a renomination.

said he, "and nothing can make me accept the nominatios. My position, I think, is pretty well understood."

Since Col. George B. McClelland has refused to stand for reelection as President of the Board of Aldermen, several other candidates for the nomination have burgeoned. Two of these are Alderman Rollin M. Morgan of the Twenty-first and Henry D. Hotchkies, the young lawyer who, as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention, stood for the rights of the people against the partisan measures of the Republican majority. Alderman Morgan will probably be called on to stand again for his old place.

OTTENDORFER'S APPEAL.

Overraled by His Executive Committee, He loes to the General Committee.

The war between the followers of Oswald Ottendorfer and Gustav H. Schwab will be renewed at a meeting of the General Committee of the German-American Union to be held in Terrace Garden to-night. At the recent meet ing of the Executive Committee held in the ame place the Schwab faction succeeded in passing a resolution preventing the organization from taking any political action save in respect of the municipal and county election. The General Committee, which is said to be controlled by Mr. Ottendorfer, will try to reverse this decision and make it possible for the union to nominate or endorse candidates for the Assembly.

The 685 delegates who now hold the destinies of the reorganized Democracy of Kings county in their hands had no such scruples. The four old district leaders were denounced on Monday night by delegate after delegate in the most unmeasured terms for their dictatorial, unfair, and undemocratic methods of boosting them selves into power, and each of them was repudiated in toto as a representative of the rejuvenated Democracy, McCarren and Delmar were present and had submit with blanched faces to the terrible castigation they received. It is said that Mc-Carty and Coffey were not so far away from the hall that the cheers which followed their humillation could not reach their startled ears. McCarren tried to explain that he should no be included in the sweeping censure, as the question of his election as State Committeeman was yet in absyance, the delegates in his.Congressional district not having yet come together. The fact that he had dared to become a candidate was sufficient to have him put in the same political grave with McCarty, Delmar, and Coffey.

The sentiment against the old machine leaders was not confined to the delegates. Every man in the vast assemblage—and the hall was packed to its utmost capacity—fairly howled and anced with delight when the resolutions of rebuke and repudiation summoning the four men to resign from the State Committee, forthwith had been adopted.

The remarkable incident was clearly interpreted as a declaration of war on the part of the he included in the sweeping censure, as the reorganized Democracy against the old Willoughby street machine, and as an indication that new men and new methods must come to the front.

This sentiment was still further emphasized by the presentation of another "olive branch of peace" to the Shenard organization, and the appointment of a committee on harmony.

The action of the General Committee forcibly illustrates the fact that the new Democratic organization has grown completely cut of the control of the old managers, and that in future there are to be open conventions, and a free field and no favor for any aspiring candidates.

The Young Men's Democratic Club, which has hitherto been in open antagonism to the regular organization, was so elated on Monday night over the news from the Atheneum that they enthusiastically adopted a resolution thanking the committee and commending its action toward the State Committeemen.

The old leaders were in a half-dazed condition yesterday. Few of them could be found who were willing to make any comments over the revolution. This is what ex-Senator McCarty said: "Now, I care nothing for what the General Committee did.

"My election to the State Committee was fair and regular. I was put there without any solicitation on my part. I don't propose to resign at the dictation of the committee. I will, however, regard the wishes of the delegates who elected me. If they come together and ask me to get off the State Committee in the interests of harmony I will accede to their wishes. I have had enough political honors, and it is not my wish in any way to interfere with the reorganization in this county."

Ex-County Clerk Delma readd: "I was regularly elected by seven of the ten delegates in my district and I don't recognize the right of the General Committee to interfere."

It is understood that Senator Coffey likewise has no intention to obey the mandate of the General Committee to laterfere.

FOR THE GREATER NEW YORK.

The Brooklyn Consolidation League Starts The Consolidation League of Brooklyn has started out on an active campaign for "the Greater New York," and will keep that impor-tant issue constantly before the electors of that city during the canvass. A meeting of the league was held yesterday afternoon in the Art Association rooms in Montague street. President James Matthews was in the chair, and J. S. T. Stranahan, James McMahon, Leonard Moody, and fifty or sixty other leading members of the league were present. Mr. Grant, Chairman of the Executive Committee, gave a history of the movement and told what had already been accomplished, in spite of the opposition of the politicians. It-was a great victory, he said, for the league that the people should get an oppor-tunity to vote on the question at the coming elec-

There was no doubt, he contended, that if the distribution was clearly understood the vote would be overwhelmingly in favor of the consolidation scheme. It should be their duty to spread all the required information.

Mr. Stranahan, Mr. McMahon, and others spoke in favor of "the Greater New York," and it was resolved that a committee on finance should be appointed to raise funds and keep the campaign in active motion during the coming month. This is the committee:

Mr. Stranahan, Mr. Batterman, Col. Sprague, Mr. Moody, and Mr. Chauncey each subscribed $250 on the spot, and several others $50. Nearly $2,000 was raised before the close of the meeting. Circulars are to be sent broadcast by the league, and one big mass meeting at least will be held.

BROOKLYN REPUBLICANS.

City Clerk Benjamin Will Be In Control at Headquarters.

Schieria administration, will be in charge. The opening gun of the campaign will be fired at the Clermont Avenue Rink some night next week, with Senator Saxton as the star attraction.

The campaign is to be closed at the Academy of Music with either Gov. McKinley or Congressman Thomas B. Reed.

Mayor Schieren's scheme to make a combination with the Shepardites in the local nominations does not meet with much approval in the Republican camp. The boys think they have a soft thing this year, and want to grab everything in sight. A proposition to give the Shepard Featherheads a single place on the ticket would be opposed by the leading Republican statesmen.

Each candidate was present, marshalling his forces, which consist largely of substitutes for the original delegates.

After various futile devices to end the deadlock, the Convention adjouned until to-morrow afternoon.

active spirits in the committee, and officiated as assistant secretary.

It is said by a Shepardite, who is well informed on the confabs which have been going on since the Convention, that there was a hitch between the Shepard Featherheads and the Fairchild-Grace Cuckoos, and that Mr. Shepard was much put out over the hesitating action of the latter.

A portion of Mr. Patterson's remarks apparently confirm this view. Referring to the Fairchild-Grace organization he said:

"They are more numerous than we, but (closing his eyes) they are not so enthusiastic." It was predicted that the negotiations between the Kings county and New York Independents would be brought to a sudden halt.

HERRICK CANDIDATES ENDORSED. Will Democrats Subordinate Local Issues to the State Ticket. ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 2.-Democracy in Albany s united, and a solid Democratic vote for the ominees on the State and county tickets will polled this November. The Democrats of both factions have joined hands, and will fight for Hill and victory at the coming election, and the result will be that Albany county will swing back into the column of Democratic counties of the State, where it rightfully belongs. Albany at present has a Republican Mayor, but was elected on a combination tick-supported by a large majority of the Democrats of this city; otherwise a Republican Mayor could not have been elected. Now, with a solid organization, composed of men who have the interests of the Demcratic party at heart and are willing to sacrifice anything and everything for the success of otes and the State ticket will suffer to the same extent. The trouble in the Democratic ranks here was caused by certain trivial matters, which have been thrown aside for the present at least, and the party of the people, the Republican county ticket will be buried under an avaianche of

The example of the Democrats in this city in Kings and New York and if this is done nothing on earth can prevent David B. Hill from taking up the reins of State Government again in January.

The regular organization here nominated its county ticket on Tuesday last. Congressman Tracey, for reflection, headed it. To-day, at noon, the new Democracy, the followers of Sennoon, the new Democracy, the followers of Sen-ator Hill, held its Convention. It was thought by some that a ticket headed by John Boyd Thacher for Congress would be nominated, but the delegates to the Convention saw that if another county ticket was placed in the field, even though its chances for election were excel-lent, the State ticket might suffer, and there-fore resolved to endorse the nominees of the old organization, and thereby gain for their leader, David B. Hill, a full vote from Albany county at the coming election.

organization, and thereby gain for their leader, David B. Hill, a full vote from Albany county at the coming election.

The Convention of Hill Democrats was called to order at noon by Lawyer Francis B. Delehanty. Dr. John V. Hennessey, a member of the Common Council, who was elected Chairman, made a strong address, in which he declared that the action of the Convention would be awaited with interest everywhere, and that its action would have a deep influence on factional differences in every part of the State.

Mr. Delehanty, who acted as a substitute delegate, then offered the following resolution:

"The Albany County Democracy, in their Convention duy assembled, declare a cordial acceptance of the principles enunciated in the platform adopted by the State Convention, and heartily endorse the praises of the administration of President Cleveland and that of Gov. Flower, and the well-merited denunciation of the partisanship and religious intolerance of the Republican majority of the Constitutional Convention; and pledge their support to the nominations of David B. Hill, Daniel N. Lockwood, and William J. Gaynor.

"We recognize that in order to elect our State

tions of David B. Hill, Daniel N. Lockwood, and William J. Gaynor.

"We recognize that in order to elect our State ticket, and to defeat the iniquitous apportionment amendment to the State Constitution, a united party must exist throughout the State. While the new Democracy of Albany county was prompted chiefly to the necessity of forming the organization under whose call this Convention assembled, by the dishonest and undemocratic election methods which are in vogue throughout the county, yet for the benefit of our State ticket we are willing to defer our warfare in that respect until such time as local issues are alone involved in the election.

respect until such time as local issues are alone involved in the election.

"In the hope that harmony may be restored in other localities by our action, we recommend to the support of all bemocrats of the county of Albany, for the office of Member of Congress the Hon. Charles Tracey: for District Attorney, James W. Eaton; for Sheriff, Frederick W. Conger; for Coroner, John A. Burns, and the candidate for Justice of the Sessions. We likewise urge upon our Assembly district Conventions such nominations for members of Assembly as will accomplish a like successful result."

The cheers which were uttered at the conclusion of the reading of the resolution resonnded through the City Hall and were heard some blocks away.

The cheers which were attered at the control son of the reading of the resolution resonned through the City Hall and were heard some blocks away.

The action of the Democrats in uniting was the cause of an effort being made by State Committeeman William Barnes, Jr., to unite Republican factions. A conference for the purpose of harmony was held in the office of Myer Susbaum this afternoon. The leaders of the many factions into which the Republican party is divided here were present at the alleged harmony conference, the result of which was far from being harmonious. Every one wanted some one from his faction to be nominated for Congress and for the other offices, and the result was that the conference adjourned until to-morrow morning without the slightest bit of harmony in sight.

The most prominent candidates for Congress from this district are Editor George N. Southwick, of Mr. Barnes's naper, the Journal, and Clifford D. Gregory. Mr. Southwick is one of the brightest tariff and political writers in the State, and will probably get the regular nomination. He will be opposed, however, by at least one Republican candidate. The result of the Hepublican discord here will be the slashing of both the State and regular county ticket, by the oppesing factions. The situation in Albany may be summed up in a few words: The Democrats are united and are in for victory, while the Republicans are fighting among themselves and defeat is staring them in the face.

It is said here to-night that one of the principal causes of the union of the Democracy here was a telegram, said to have been received by one of the leaders from Senator Hill, which said that "harmony will prevail throughout the State, and must begin in Albany county."

WON'T OPPOSE TILLMAN. Republicans in South Carolina Decide Not to Hun a State Ticket. COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 2.-The Republican Executive Committee met here to-day to decide upon a course of action to be taken by the party in the coming election.

The committee decided not to call a Convention or nominate a State ticket, but candidates will be run in each Congress district. In some of the districts candidates have already been selected.

The committee determined to work against the proposed Constitutional Convention, as it is supported that such a body, if called to meer, will make qualifications for the suffrage that will disfranchise a large majority of the negro will disfrance a large majorate.

E. M. Brayton and Tom Johnston, both white, claimed to be the nominees of the party from the Seventh Congressional district, but the committee decided in favor of the latter. The national committee, to whom the contest had been referred, decided in Brayton's favor.

The action of the State Committee in this matter, as well as its refusal to call a convention, has caused a split, and the Braytonites are out in a prutest against the committee's work.

entry and up the stairways, and the tenants on the upper floors were rushing pell-mell for the fire-escape in the rear. Some of them came tumbling down stairs through the smoke and got to the street; the others escaped to adjoining houses in the rear.

An alarm was sent in by some one, and, before the engines were fairly on the ground, a second alarm. By that time a great crowd had collected in the street, and the police had hard work making room for the firemen to work. Dishevelled women raced from stdewalk to sidewalk beseeching and bemoaning: all the youngsters in the block got in the way, bawling lustily. Nobody knew how many people were still in the burning building; nobody could find his or her own.

when the firemen got into the basement they made no search for the child in the baby carriage, for they had been told that all the Kreeger children were safe. Instead, they made for the upper floors, from which it was suspected that not every one had escaped.

On the fourth floor Mrs. Mary Ginsberg, who had given birth to a child but a few hours before, lay in bed with the infant at her breast. The woman attending her had rushed from the room at the first alarm. The sick woman heard the shrieks echoing in the building and smelled the smoke. Terrified, she clutched her child and crawled out of bed. She went to the door opening on the entry, but was driven back by the choking volume of smoke. Then she staggered to the air-shaft window and cried out with all the breath there was in her.

Samuel Silverman and James Tiernan, who live in the adjoining house, were on the roof and heard her. Tiernan ran down the scuttle ladder of his own house and got a rope. An end of it was lowered to the woman. They called to her to the it around her body, but she either did not hear them or was too much terrified to understand, for, instead, she knotted it around her left arm.

The young men were afraid to pull, fearing that her weight would dislocate the arm. They yelled again, but she dign't understand. Clasping the child she made frantic gestures to be pulled up. There was no longer time to lose, for the smoke was pouring out from behind her. So they pulled slowly and carefully. The woman and infant were drawn from the window until they swung free in the airshaft. Then the full weight came upon the woman's arm and she they swung free in the airshaft. Then the full weight came upon the woman's arm and she shricked in pain. But the harder the rope cut the more closely she pressed the infant, and with a few quick and steady pulls mother and child were landed safely on the roof.

On the same floor, in the rear, Mrs. Dove was rescued by Samuel Krenfeld, who also lives in 213 Madison street. When the fire broke out she was alone in her rooms with her two-weeksold twins. Krenfeld was on the roof and heard her screams. He descended into the burning building, seized the twins, one under each arm, and carried them to a place of safety, the mother following.

HUDSON COUNTY CANDIDATES. List of the Men Who Will Be Voted For at enrollment of Democratic voters in Hudon county, under the new plan prepared by the Provisional Committee, was begun yesterday evening and will be continued on Friday afternoon and evening. The reorganization plan does away with conventions. Candidates will be nominated at open primaries to be held on the 10th inst., and no one will be permitted to vote who has not been enrolled. This scheme is the one by which the silk stocking element of the party hope to down the machine men and short hairs. The latter, however, have accepted the plan, not with any special enthusiasm, but they are preparing for the fray and are going in to win. They declare that if they do win the silk stockings will have no occasion to cry fraud and boss rule, as they have done before, because they are now in control of the entire machinery for the primary elections.

Another provision of the reorganization scheme is that all candidates who desire to run at the primaries must send their names and the titles of the offices they are ambitious to fill to the Secretary of the Executive Committee, Gen. William C. Heppenheimer, secretary of the committee, closed the lists yesterday, and announced these candidates as having filed their applications: the plan, not with any special enthusiasm, but

Gov. McKintey's Tour.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 2 .- Gov. McKinley, with everal members of the Republican State Committee, left St. Louis on a special train at midnight and reached Kansas City at 8 o'clock this norning. The train made no stops, but from daylight there were crowds at nearly all the daylight there were crowds at nearly all the depots between Brunswick and the Missouri Bridge, and cheers for Mckinley were given as the special rushed by.

When the city limits were reached the train was boarded by a reception committee headed by Mayor Webster Davis and ext-tongressman William Warner, which extended to him the freedom of the city. There was a great crowd at the Union Depot, and it was with considerable difficulty that a path was made to the carriages in waiting. The escorting procession to to the Coates House was headed by a detachment of mounted police, and a number of bands were interspersed between the carriages.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Gov. McKinley spoke at the Auditorium, and was then whisked across the river to the Lansas side, where another audience was in waiting. The departure for Topeka will be made early to-morrow mornther audience was in waiting. The departure or Topeks will be made early to-morrow morn This afternoon flov. McKinley spoke to three immense meetings. He is booked for twelve speeches to-morrow at different points along his route in Kansas.

SO IS HER HUSBAND, WITNESS MUL-

He Is Augry Because of His Long Detention and Declares that He Was Conched to Give the Testimony on Which Meyer Was Convicted - Dr. O'Sullivan Talks of Devious Practice by Mr. McIntyre

Dr. O'Sullivan, the medico-legal expert, who with Lawyer Brooke, defended Dr. Meyer, the poisoner, in his trial for the murder of Ludwig Brandt, and who, it is expected, will defend Mrs. Meyer, the poisoner's wife, has become angry over the statements of District Attorney

"In the first place," said the Doctor yesterday, "I have evidence to prove that Mrs. Meyer never intended to make a confession as Me McIntyre says, but there were many efforts made to force her into making a statement. Mrs. Gomez, who is sup-posed to be doing charitable work in the Tombs, tried to get her to write enough of a statement that would have put her in the power of the District Attorney, so that he could have put her into the House of Detention. Piere it would have been impossible for us to see her, and she might ultimately have said anything to get out. I can prove this by a letter which Mrs. Gomez sent to Mrs. Meyer on Christmas last." The Doctor here exhibited a letter from Mrs.

Gomez containing a draft of a letter which Mrs. Meyer was to send to Assistant District Attorney McIntyre. Mrs. Gomez addressed her in the most endearing terms and asked her to destroy her letter as soon as she had read it.

Mrs. Meyer turned the letter over to her counsel and did not comply with the request. The

Mrs. Meyer turned the letter over to her counsel and did not comply with the request. The Doctor also told stories about drugged sweetmeats which were sent to Mrs. Meyer to get her into such a condition that she might say something that would incriminate her.

"We have asserted right along," he said, "that Brandt was never murdered ov the Meyers, and was still living. We hope to be able to prove this some day by producing him. Here is a letter which Mr. Chanler received from the man Muller or Kirvel:

"Muller's letter was dated House of Detention, Sept. 11, and, in part, was as follows:

"I wish you would do something to get me out of this dirty prison, where I have to suffer more than I ever did in my life. The District Attorney's office and the keepers are in with that insurance company, and they are trying to get me for the third time to tell a pack of lies, which was compelled out of me through long imprisonment, bad treatment, and all kinds of buildoxing.

"It has been printed in the Mutual Life, and was brought to me to sign on the second day of December, 1893. There has no murder been committed in that house on Thirteenth street, and Ludwig Brandt did not die.

"If you will get me out of this place I will show you that pack of lies which they made me study, and I will tell you where Brandt is now. I wrote another letter this morning which was kept back by the keepers. I wish you would get it.

words another letter this morning which was kept back by the keepers. I wish you would get it.

"The last time I testified against Dr. Meyer I did it under the condition that I should get my liberty as soon as they statements would be in. But they fooled me from one day to another.

"As soon as they found out that I did not want to tell no more lies they imprisoned me again to make me tell.

"Then we recelved this postal card from him," said the Doctor:

"Mic. CHANLER: I have informed the District Attorney's office and the Mutual Life a long while ago that Mrs. Meyer is not guilty of the death of Ludwig Brandt. If she will be put on trial for murder I will be a witness for the defence. The Montgomery arrived in port yesterday norning. Capt. Davis failed to announce offi-form as a Captain and representative of the trial for murder I will be a witness for the defence.

"I wish you would call on me at the House of Detention and I will give you enough evidence to release her. I am not afraid of Mr. McIntyre's buildoxing. The Pinkertons are doing all they buildoxing. The Pinkertons are doing all they can again to get me to tell another pack of lies. Yours respectfully.

"It was on the evidence of this man that Dr. Meyer was tried and convicted, said Dr. O'Sullivan," and Mrs. Meyer has now been fifteen months in prison awaiting trial for a crime she is innocent of.

"The statements of Mr. McIntyre that I had an influence over her, and that she imagined her-United States Navy, "to leave his card." The clerks prevailed upon him to allow the Mayor to see him, and he was ushered into the Mayor's private office. see him, and he was ushered into the Mayor's private office.

'I suppose you are here because the Secretary the Navy ordered you here," rejoined the "I suppose you are here because the Secretary of the Navy ordered you here," rejoined the Mayor.

"I was instructed to be here on the 11th of September, but I could not make it. I understood there was something going on, but I don't know what it was."

"About one hundred years ago," answered his Honor sarcastically, "some British vessels sailed up the bay here and fired a few shots at the city. Some fellow named Key, who was a prisoner on a British ship, wrote a poem, which, believe, they called "The Star-Spangled Hanner." The Britishers were sent back. To commemorate the events of those days we legalized Sept. 11 as a holiday, and you were ordered to helpe clebrate."

After a few more remarks the commander "The statements of Mr. McIntyre that I had an influence over her, and that she imagined herself in love with me, are untrue, and I regard them in the nature of a personal attack to force us to show whatever defence we may have contemplated, if we are really going to defend her. "My relation with her has been simply that of lawyer and client. However, I do not propose to intimate under any provocation what the defence will or will not be."

Mr. Faulkner, Chairman of the committee, said this afternoon that Mr. Wilson would enter upon the work of the campaign immediately upon his arrival from Europe, and that, when he reached his district, he would find things well advanced and the interest growing day by day.

Mr. Faulkner admits that a very strong fight is being waged against the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, but he says there can be no doubt as to the success of the nominal author of the new tariff law. The Hepublicans are making a great effort to throw the mining vote to the Republican candidate, the argument made against Mr. Wilson being that if he should be elected he would make another effort to place coal on the free list.

HOW THE PEACE OF EUROPE

What People Are Saying About It and How It Was Foretold in America Two Years Ago The Serious Results.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Prof. Leyden of Berlin, the celebrated specialist, who was sent for by the Uzar, has diagnosticated his aliment as Bright's disease of the kidneys in an advanced stage.—Press Cable.

IS BEING UNDERMINED.

This announcement, simple as it may seem, has thrown the nations of Europe into a state of excitement. If the Czar dies France will probably suffer, Germany be helped, and the nations of Europe unsettled.

Two years ago this note of warning was sounded in America. It became known at that time that the Czar was suffering from headaches, depressed feelings, acute pains in various parts of the body, uncertain appetite, sleeplessness, and other irregularities. A retinue of court physicians failed to understand what these unmistakable symptoms meant; but in America, where discovery and science have accomplished so much, it was instantly seen that the Czar was suffering from Bright's disease of the kidneys.

discovery and science have accomplished so much, it was instantly seen that the Car was suffering from Bright's disease of the kidneys, which is certain to end in serious disease or death unless taken in time. Acting upon this knowledge the papers of America spoke freely of the fact that "the Car was in danger."

The natural result has come. Bright's disease, in an advanced stage, has attacked the lineal descendant of Peter the Great, and the nations of the world await with anxiety the result. Had the note of warning, which was sounded in America, been taken, the health of the linperial Monarch would to-day undoubtedly be perfect. The great modern malady is liright's disease, it steals like a thief into the system, showing the symptoms of nearly every disease, and different symptoms in each person. It is the most dangerous of all known diseases, whether it attacks men, vonen, or innocent children. It is more insidious than consumption, and fully as fatal. Its great danger lies in its deceptive nature, for few people realize that they are its victims until it is too late. Indeed, there are cases where men and women have died without even suspecting they had the disease. There has never been but one remedy for it, although scientists strove for years to find one. That remedy, which is known as a household word, which is the means of preserving the lives of so many thousands of men and women, which is the means of preserving the lives of so many thousands of men and women, which is the means of preserving the lives of so many thousands of men and women, which is the means of preserving the lives of so many thousands of men and women, which is the means of preserving the lives of so many thousands of men and women, which is the means of preserving the lives of so many thousands of men and women, which is the means of preserving the lives of so many thousands of men and women is a longer of low, rich or poor, when any trouble of this nature attacks them fly at once to this great sovereign remeity for relief. have requested your proxies for use at the annual meeting of the shareholders to be held in Topeka on Oct. 25 next. In renewing this request they respectfully call your attention to the following facts and considerations:
"No one of the new members of your present

Board has had the slightest connection with nor responsibility for the mistakes and misfortunes of the previous managements of the company's affairs. A statement has been published to the of the previous managements of the company's affairs. A statement has been published to the effect that the new members are merely substitutes for the retiring parties. This statement is an unqualified fulsehood, and at the coming election, should proxies in controlling numbers be sent to the present Board, the latter will be still further strengthened in the interest of the shareholders. The duty of your present Board is to endeavor to overcome future difficulties in the way of preserving and enhancing the value of the company's property.

"The chief of these difficulties now confronting your directors and their successors for the caming year is not the operation of the railway system of the company (for that is exclusively the work of the receivers), but the proper representation of the shareholders in the work of parting the affairs of the company on a sound financial basis. Unless this work is properly done the real value of your shares cannot be preserved. To postpone, so long as may be practicable, the sale of the property of the company under forcelosure, and to bring about the specity acceptance, by all concerned, of a fair plan of reorganization, are the most important tasks now demanding the attention of your directors. No Board or other agency can do this work successfully unless it has access to all the important facts and all the valuable estimates and opinions; unless it can tell clearly what is a fair and practicable reorganization plan in the shareholders' interest; unless it has force enough to present its views effectively to the many persons and parties in authority; unless it can command the assent of the bondholders to the sacrifices they ought to make, and unless it can formish, or cause to be furnished. the financial aid that and parties in authority; unless it can command the assent of the bondholders to the sacrifices they ought to make, and unless it can furnish, or cause to be furnished, the financial aid that must be forthcoming in support of those sharsholders who cannot, or will not bear their proper proportions of the unavoiable intree.

"The undersigned are glad to be able to assure you that there are at the present time no ascertained facts bearing on the questions pending of which your directors are not in assession. To what is already known will be added the results of the extended and minute expert examination of the company's accounts made by Mr. Stephen Little, the thorough inspection of the physical property of the company by Mr. Robert Moore, and the careful estimates and opinions of the most competent persons connected with or familiar with the company or its affairs and capabilities. From this ample basis of information will be determined the attitude of your Hoard toward the problems of reorganization; and of such information full abstracts will be furnished to the shareholders. Your directors will supplement their aircady abundant means and experience with every form of assistance obtainable, and no step will be left untaken that may the better enable them to at promptly and wisely."
